

Introduction

This notice is to inform customers that a new National Waste Programme e-learning module Waste Loading Plan Awareness is now live and available free of charge to all.

Waste Loading Plan Awareness e-learning

The National Programme Office, in consultation with stakeholders, is developing a framework of training modules to support the industry in knowledge and skills development for the management of LLW.

Waste Loading Plan (WLP) Awareness is a 20-minute introductory module on why WLPs are needed for the transport of radioactive waste; key pieces of legislation, guidance and standards; what information is required to produce a compliant WLP; the consequences of poorly secured loads; and the responsibilities and accountabilities of the waste consignor. This awareness raising course is not designed to enable learners to produce a WLP.

The course, though available to anyone, is particularly suited to teams generating or managing waste on a nuclear site, including individuals who commission WLPs or individuals organising work that requires a WLP (typically project managers, engineers and POWs), as well as those who provide information to facilitate the production of WLPs (typically engineers, waste advisors, waste co-ordinators and transport team members).

Other NWP introductory e-learning modules which may also be of interest include: (i) Introduction to Waste (ii) Introduction to Low Level Radioactive Waste.

NWP training on how to complete LLWR Waste Services forms (to access treatment and disposal services) is currently being revised; training workbooks will be available to download in the autumn. To be notified as soon as they become available, email nwp@llwrsite.com.

How to access modules

The e-learning modules are available free of charge via the Nuclear Training Network. If you haven't already done so, you will need to register on the NTN portal (<https://www.nucleartrainingnetwork.com/>); then insert 'NWP' in the search box and the new course and all existing modules will appear.
