

Introduction

This notice is to inform Customers that a National Waste Programme (NWP) database on training courses supporting Low Level Waste management is live on the LLW Repository Ltd website.

Database of training courses supporting LLW management

The NWP, in consultation with stakeholders, has been developing resources to support the growth of LLW management skills and knowledge across the industry. An Excel database is now available that signposts both commercial and free training courses supporting radioactive waste management and the management of waste through its lifecycle.

To access the database, visit: <http://llwrsite.com/national-waste-programme/llw-training-modules/>

Users should note that inclusion of a course in the database does not constitute endorsement of any particular training material or provider.

The database will be updated, periodically, as new courses are identified and the National Programme Office welcomes suggestions on courses to be included.

Further Information and Questions
